SIX SENSES SPA

Six Senses Spa Fiji is featured within the resort's Wellness Village, where guests enjoy a layered approach to wellness. Treatments go beyond the ordinary, combining an intuitive mix of science awareness, and include sessions such as Singing Bowl Meditation and Deep Tissue Massage. The spa area, which covers an area of 35,660 square feet (3,313 square meters), offers a high-tech and high-touch approach defining a service that is crafted around the individual. In addition to the treatment rooms it includes an innovative Alchemy Bar, a yoga pavilion and a relaxation lounge with sauna, steam and hot and cold plunge pools. Complimentary activities are offered seven days per week.

The spa features the multidimensional Six Senses Integrated Wellness program that starts with a wellness assessment that evaluates a number of bio-markers. Results allow the spa team to determine and suggest behavioral and lifestyle adjustments and create a personalized program based on the needs of the guest. Created by the Six Senses Spa team along with respected medical doctors who form the Six Senses Wellness Board; Dr. Michael Breus for sleep, Dr. Steven Gundry for nutrition and Dr. Mehmet Oz for overall health; each guest's personalized program may include spa treatments, exercise, yoga, meditation, Eat With Six Senses or Sleep With Six Senses.

There are programs in place to conserve energy, and wherever possible packaging is kept to an absolute minimum, or is reusable. Six Senses Fiji has one of the largest off-grid solar installations powered by Tesla battery packs in the Southern Hemisphere. The resort collects rainwater, uses worm based septic tanks and also has its own reverse osmosis plant and water refinery, producing high quality drinking water without the use of plastic bottles.

A resort fruit and vegetable garden supports the ultimate aim of self-sustained food and beverages on the island, drastically reducing the environmental footprint.
