Movie under the Stars

Six Senses presents film favorites on the big screen with popcorn, every day at the main beach from 9:00 pm.

Mangrove Trail

Our mangrove trail explores the rich mangrove forest adjacent to the resort. Mangrove trees grow in the coastal areas where the sea meets the land. The mangrove provides both a habitat for wild life and a breeding site for a wide variety of crabs and fishes which is essential for the sustainability of the local marine life.

SUSTAINABILITY

Six Senses is committed to sustainability and its obligation to the environment and the community. Widely recognized as having established the initial benchmarks for the hospitality industry showing that a leisure lifestyle could be successfully embraced by the very top tier of resorts, Six Senses has shown that it is possible to enhance the guest experience by showing respect to nature.

Consistent with the philosophy of the group, Six Senses Yao Noi pledges to improve the ecological and carbon footprint from activities associated with resort and spa operations. There are various programs in place to conserve energy; not overloading the system to prevent using unnecessary amounts of energy using of quantum heat recovery for hot water and energy efficient light bulbs. Furthermore, the resort produces its own drinking water through reverse osmosis. After purification and mineralization the water is bottled into re-usable glass bottles. All imported water is banned from the resort to reduce waste. As well, the resort grows its own vegetables in its organic gardens to provide guests and hosts with a healthy, sustainable and local food supply. In addition to its sustainable initiatives, the resort launched its own organic chicken farm with 200 free range hens for the resorts own egg production in March 2014, and has recently adopted five goats for production of goat milk products. Wherever possible, packaging is kept to an absolute minimum.

Six Senses Yao Noi was built on the site of a former rubber plantation. Many of the rubber trees were kept to create shade from the sun as well as keeping soil from erosion. In addition, the landscape and gardens have been improved with the philosophy of re-generating the tropical flora as it would have been if the area was left untouched. Local plants and fruit trees have been planted to attract wild life, particularly birds such as the Hornbill. The resort is fortunate to include the mangrove forest as part of the restaurants' highlights.

Six Senses Yao Noi's social commitments include regular social responsibility activities to support the local Yao Noi School and the local community, where the hosts of the resort are actively involved.
